AGE OF MIRACLES IS NOT OVER!

So Says Lad Who Rode
83 Miles Above Car
Trucks

Newark, O., August 21.—Is the age of miracles over?
Ask 15-year-old Tom Stone of Benwood. If it were, Tom wouldn't be alive today.
When a Baltimore and Ohio passenger train pulled into the station yards here, the regular inspectors started on their usual examination of the gears. When the inspectors reached the baggage coach, they were utterly amazed to discover wedged in above the front trucks—a human being.
It was a boy. He said his name was Tom.
He was so wedged between the bed of the car and the air pipes, with his back only six inches from the wheel, that he could not help himself. He was covered with grease and fine dirt and stiff from his cramped position.
There was not room for the inspectors or trainmen to work on him to release him.
As there is a state law against moving a car when a body dead or alive is under it, jacks were brought hurriedly and the end of the car was raised.
Captain Castor of the Newark police department lifted the boy out. The police captain stood the lad on his feet and found him indescribably dirty and stiff. He was unhurt, however, and able and willing to talk.
The trainmen and police were further amazed when the boy told them he had ridden 83 miles before he was discovered at Newark.

In reply to questions, the boy said his name was Tom Stone and that he had been visiting with a sister in Chattanooga, Tenn., as his home life at Benwood was not as pleasant as it might be. Several days ago, he explained, he started back for Benwood. He said he had no funds and so decided to steal a ride.
Trainmen pointed out that to understand the perils and hardships of the boy's trip, it must be known that the space occupied by him above the front trucks of the baggage car, was so small that except for his slender build he would not have been able to get in at all. With no spring under him and a hard board shelf to lie on, the humming wheels near him rolled a cloud of dust. He had squirmed around so as to turn his back to the wheels so that small particles of ballast could not disfigure his face.

WEDDED BLISS

plete control of the plant which occupies a whole floor.
A dozen officials of the company and office employees were forced stand in a corner, their hands above their heads, while the bandits tortured Sig Lazarus, head of the concern, until he opened five safes.
A woman customer, there with her daughter, fainted and was left unheeded on the floor.
One employee, an aged elevator operator, was slugged into unconsciousness.

STATE SCHOOL HEAD FAVORS LEGAL MOVE TO DECIDE QUESTION

Riegel Prompted To Statement By Suit At East Liverpool

Columbus, Aug. 21.—Decision by the higher courts of the question whether the Bible may be legally taught in the public schools is greatly to be desired. Such a decision should serve to clear up the warfare now being waged in various parts of Ohio, as well as in different sections of the nation, between proponents and opponents of biblical instruction in the public schools during school hours.

These opinions were voiced here today by Vernon Riegel, Ohio's director of public education. They were prompted by the situation at East Liverpool where suit has been instituted seeking to prevent the school board there from carrying into effect its plans for bible teaching in the East Liverpool public schools.

Claiming consummation of the proposal would be unconstitutional, opponents have asked the Columbus county common pleas court for an order preventing the school board from permitting protestant pastors, members of the East Liverpool Ministerial association, from conducting classes in religious instruction in the school buildings there. It is anticipated that the suit serving as a test case, may be carried to the higher courts in hope of obtaining a final, conclusive ruling.

Director Riegel expressed belief that the courts should determine whether biblical instruction in the public schools constitutes an illegal abridgement of the constitutional rights of religious freedom accorded citizens of the United States. If the courts should hold that classes in bible study are permissible in the public schools Riegel feels that the judges should go to some detail in stating how far school authorities may go in this matter.

Riegel pointed out that his department is observing a "hands off" policy in the matter of bible teaching in the public schools. While the bible is being taught in various sections of Ohio this instruction has been arranged for, and is being supervised, solely by the local school officials. There is no intention on the part of Riegel or any one in his department, to take any action relative to the East Liverpool case, Riegel said.

ROCK DUSTING IS PLANNED TO GUARD HEALTH IN MINES

Columbus, Ohio, August 21.—With a view to making conditions for Ohio miners safer, state authorities are recommending that Buckeye state coal operators subject gaseous and dry and dusty mines to the rock-dusting treatment. This is the announcement made here today by Jerome Watson, chief deputy of the state division of mines.

Of Ohio's approximately 1500 coal mines, Watson estimated that about 400 should be given this treatment at least each half year, or oftener, if analysis of the miners air discloses presence of gas, or dust, in dangerous amounts.

Watson pointed out that this contemplated action on the part of the operators in this state will be voluntary, there being no Ohio law requiring it. The practice of rock-dusting has been recommended by federal and state mining chiefs as a means of preventing explosions of dust, or gas, or to limit their intensity, it was stated.

Information has been received by Watson that 62 coal mines in Pennsylvania were subjected to the rock dusting treatment during the past year, compared to four mines during the preceding year.

Three Ohio coal companies, Watson said, recently started rock-dusting a number of their mines. These companies are: Cleveland & Western, Wheeling Steel Corporation, and the Carnegie Steel Company. These concerns, it was stated, operate about 15 mines.

Watson expressed belief and other Ohio coal operators soon will begin this work. He said the movement will receive all possible encouragement from his department.

Xenia City Schools Open September 14

Xenia school pupils can say good-bye to "dear old vacation days" Monday, September 14, when all the city schools will resume sessions for the fall semester.

Boys and girls over the city will forget vacation pleasures that day and resume the routine of daily classes and studies. Pupils are busy already laying in a store of paper, pencils and books for the date when they will rejoin their schoolmates.

Four hundred students have been enrolled in Central High School alone. In addition, there are 230 pupils in Central Junior High School, according to figures of school heads.

Central Junior and Senior High Schools have been organized into one body, and this plan will be carried out with the opening of school in September.

Previously, Miss May Harper, had been employed as principal of Junior High School and Harper C. Pendry was principal of Senior High School. Under the one unit, Spencer Shank, new member of the Central faculty, assumes the position of principal of both the junior and senior schools. The new organization is known as the "Central High School Unit."

Miss Harper will hold the office of assistant principal of both the junior and senior schools. In some instances teachers of Central Senior High School will instruct Junior classes, under the new order.

Miss Irma Johnston has been employed as full-time office girl in the office of Superintendent Harper C. Pendry. Miss Margaret Wead will retain her position as clerk of the Xenia City Board of Education.

FEDERAL COMMITTEE PROBES FATAL BLAST ON EXCURSION SHIP

Toll Reaches 42 as Others
May Die—Victims Buried.

Providence, R. I., Aug. 21.—New York steamboat inspectors who "ok'd" the ill-fated excursion steamer Mackinac, officer and crew of the ship and survivors, were called before a federal investigating committee today in an effort to fix responsibility for boiler explosion that cost 42 lives.

Meanwhile at the hospitals in Newport, many victims of the disaster were still hovering between life and death. As the federal-state probe got under way the neighboring city of Pawtucket home of many of the victims was a city of sorrow today.

Pawtucket was burying her dead. Funeral processions moved across the city all forenoon. It was estimated that there was a funeral every half hour beginning at 8 a. m. Many of the funerals were for more than one member of a family. For instance, while James McCarthy was dying in agony on a cot in Newport naval hospital, the bodies of Mrs. McCarthy and his two children James and John were placed in the ground of a local cemetery. All three were Mackinac disaster victims.

HARRY GREB HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 21.—Harry Greb, world's middleweight boxing champion, "passed a fairly good night" and with the exception of a broken rib, suffered no other injuries of consequence, physicians at the hospital where the boxer was taken, after an automobile accident, said today.

Greb and two companions were driving to Erie, Pa., where the former was scheduled to fight last night when the boxer, who was driving, suddenly put on the brakes to avoid an accident.

As the pavement was slippery and Greb's car was travelling fast it left the road and turned over three times.

The boxer was pinned beneath the car. His companions who were less seriously injured, extricated Greb and he was rushed to the hospital.

GENERAL STORE IS BURNED TO GROUND

Zanesville, O., Aug. 21.—While the crowd was leaving following the pagant at the fair grounds last night an aisle in one of the grand stands collapsed and a score of persons fell eight feet. Broken legs were sustained by Mrs. Sadie N. Leasure, Mrs. Carl Adams and Miss Clara Mull.

A sprained ankle was sustained by Mrs. Eugenia Rosa, county recorder, and Mrs. James Miller's ankle was sprained. A near panic followed the collapse and it is remarkable that more people were not hurt or possibly killed.

BOWED IN DEFEAT

Cleveland, O., Aug. 21.—Thomas Bentley and Mrs. Victoria Zbigniew both stooped to pick up two one dollar bills at the same time. Bentley won but lost. He was charged with petit larceny. Both claim they dropped the money on the sidewalk.

NOTORIOUS BANDIT TRIO LEADER SLAIN DURING GUN BATTLE

Abandoned By Pals After Being Shot By Policeman.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 21.—John Troy, leader of the notorious bandit trio who have struck terror into the hearts of residents of Worcester County by a series of desperate holdups, was abandoned dead by his two pals on the doorstep of a doctor today. Troy was shot a few hours before during a gun battle with a policeman in a restaurant.

The holdup gang staged a series of daring robberies during the night. The robbers, all under twenty years of age, as on previous occasions, used a stolen automobile. The climax to their night of banditry came in a lunchroom. Patrolman Daniel Sullivan had entered the lunchroom of Sullivan's brother.

Sullivan rushed into the lunch room in the face of the revolvers of the bandits.

Firing began immediately. Sullivan shot the leader of the Troy gang. The other bandits ceased firing and grabbed their pal as he stumbled across the sidewalk. He was pushed into the tonneau of the bandit's stolen automobile. Before Sullivan could reach them the bandits sped away. Six hours later the police received a telephone call from Dr. Lyons saying a dead man had been abandoned on his doorstep.

Police, who went to the doctor's home recognized the body as that of Troy.

KLAN WILL SPONSOR LAWS THAT OPPOSE EVOLUTION IS WORD

Fundamentalism Will Be Favored at Buckeye
Lake Meet.

Washington, Aug. 21.—From the falling hand of William Jennings Bryan, the Ku Klux Klan is going to seize the torch of fundamentalism and carry it aloft in the national conflict, according to plans of the organization's leaders which leaked out here today.

What is described as an important national gathering of Klan leaders will be held next week at Buckeye Lake, Ohio, at which the future objectives of the Klan will be discussed and perhaps decided.

H. W. Evans, the imperial wizard, and others will attend.

Among the issues to be debated will be the future location of the imperial palace.

A considerable section of the Klan favors the establishment of national headquarters in Washington and the erection here of an imposing "palace."

Klansmen sprinkled throughout the state legislatures and in congress will introduce anti-evolution laws, modeled after the Tennessee statute, according to leaders here. The Klansmen will not try to prevent the teaching of evolution in colleges and universities but they do intend to legislate it out of the common schools where the minds of students are more immature and impressionable.

It is probable, too, according to Klan spokesmen, that the organization will sponsor legislation erecting an absolute barrier to immigration. Klansmen do not consider the present two per cent law effective enough in keeping out foreigners.

The Buckeye Lake meeting will be a gathering of the Klan, "best minds" from every state it was declared today. The site was chosen because of its central location and its easy access to Klansmen in Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania, where the hooded organization has considerable strength.

Benton, Ill., Aug. 21.—A rush call was received here at 5:45 this morning asking that the sheriff and all available deputies be sent to the Bell-Zeller mine, number one at Zeigler where rioting broke out when conservative miners, braving the "wildcat picket" lines attempted to resume work. Sheriff Doreys and a force of deputies departed immediately for the scene of the reported battles.

The man turning in the alarm gave no details.

FIFTEEN SERIOUSLY INJURED AS TRAINS COLLIDE IN CANYON

Firemen Killed In Head-
On Crash—Operator Is Blamed

Salida, Colo., Aug. 21.—Two firemen J. W. Taughten Baum and C. E. Phelan, dead, and ninety passengers injured, fifteen of them seriously, was the toll this morning, the result of a crash head on between two "Panoramic special" trains of the Denver and Rio Grande western in the canyon of the Arkansas at Granite, a little mountain town near here, late yesterday.

Number 7 and 8, east and west-bound crack passenger trains of the Rio Grande, travelling at a high rate of speed, met head-on at a curve, hurtling the engine and two coaches against the canyon walls, where only a miracle prevented them from slipping into the swift current of the Arkansas river.

Failure of an operator to deliver orders to No. 8 was said by officials to have been the cause of the wreck. It is said that one order called for the meeting of the two trains at Granite, but these were annulled and new orders issued instructing the trains to pass at Pine Creek, a mile and a half beyond Granite. These orders, it is declared, were not delivered to the conductor on No. 8.

No. 7 was doubleheaded to make a heavy grade and when it crashed into the lighter train the engine on No. 8 was thrown high into the air, coming to rest on the pilot engine of the westbound train. Both engines, seeing that a crash was inevitable, jumped from their cabs but the two firemen were caught in the wreckage and killed. Only the fact that both trains were equipped with steel coaches is believed by officials to have saved many from serious injury perhaps death.

Relief trains with all available doctors and nurses were rushed from Buena Vista and Leadville to the scene of the accident.

Great confusion reigned at the scene of the disaster and a complete checkup of the injured was impossible.

Both trains were reported filled with tourists and many of the seriously injured were believed to be eastern summer tourists returning home from vacations on the coast. Among those injured was A. S. Ooka, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MYSTERY GIRL TRIES SUICIDE IN NEW YORK

New York, Aug. 21.—Police were attempting today to solve identity of the beautiful "mystery girl" who tried to commit suicide by drinking carbolic acid in the midst of midnight after theatre crowds on upper Broadway.

The girl, whose life is being fought for by hospital physicians, was dressed in luxurious clothing, wore diamonds and had $100 in her purse.

Police were skeptical as to the name given by the victim—Dolores Aubruix, 21, of 241 West Ninety First Street. She said she was an actress.

As the address was the site of a vacant lot, police believe she is suppressing her real identity. The girl refused to give any reason for her action.

BELIEVE ARRESTS SOLVE ROBBERIES

Columbus, O., Aug. 21.—Solution of the mystery surrounding at least a dozen local robberies, police believed here today, will result from the arrest of a woman and seven men late Thursday. These robberies, including holdups at local Kroger stores, occurred since the first of this year.

Guy Horton, 23, one of the octet under arrest, police said, confessed that he was responsible for "several of the eleven Kroger store holdups here this year. Authorities, also, voiced belief that at least one of these prisoners is responsible for a number of holdups which occurred at local filling stations within the past several months.

Mrs. Loretta Miller, 35, the woman arrested, is suspected by police of being the woman who accompanied the bandit, or bandits, during the Kroger store holdup here.

New Martinsville, W. Va., Aug. 21.—Governor Gore, bachelor chief executive of West Virginia was the guest of Gloria Swanson here last night. The motion picture star is here with her company working on a screen play.

Governor Gore arrived in the city last night and found the only hotel filled. Learning of the governor's predicament, Miss Swanson asked the governor to be her guest. The chief executive accepted. They went to dinner together and later attended a movie.

KIDDIES DAY

ONLY THREE CENTS FOR ALL

RIDES, AMUSEMENTS AND REFRESHMENTS.

BRING THE KIDDIES FOR A REAL TREAT

WHAT'S THE USE?

I've just made the discovery that I should have taken up banking instead of drugs! I'd just found out that in order to own a fleet of 12 story flat buildings one had to get OUT of the drug business and INTO something else!

Government statistics show that my poor druggists are getting only about 10 percent more for our stuff than before the war while in almost every other line they're getting up to a couple hundred percent MORE!

Take coffee for instance—Coffee we used to sell at 25c the pound now sells for 50c and not a blamed bit better either.

Suits of clothes that $25.00 used to buy now bust out in a $50.00 price tag! Shoes formerly going at $5.00 now cry bitterly until they meet someone with $10.00. Labor, rent, food, theater tickets, railroad fare, all have got a high chin and a chest expansion that's amazing!

During all this ballooning of prices Lydia Pinkham's still sells at $1.25. Tanlac at $1.00. Excitement pills at a dime a dozen, Armand's at 50c. No increases for Druggists!

Yet we're still happy. Maybe we like to squirm about and kick once in awhile but we're not VERY mad about things. We get cheery now and then and get measured for a quart of strawberries out of season and ever so often we soak away a few dollars for old age and maybe after all a lot of flat buildings would cause a lot of trouble to an owner! I dunno.

It does seem funny tho that druggists should be the ONLY businessmen who never raised their prices while the rains' was good.

Oh, yes, nearly forgot—AND WE WORK 12 HOURS A DAY TOO. DOC.

A Tooth Speaks!

(Not really you know—just kidding a little.)

"I sure like this ORO tooth brush made by Doc West. It scrubs me in so many places, most brushes just skim over. Doesn't bother my gum either—just right stiffness. And it stays around too long too. I don't have to go to the trouble of getting acquainted with a new one ever so often. And ORO doesn't leave me holding a bristle either."

They Went Broke!

A certain firm ordered 500,000 cakes of soap to be made especially for them. French milled, Eau de Cologne perfumed and in every way a very perfect bar for finicky trade. When it came time for the Remmer soap folks to deliver this order they found the company had gone broke! I bought some of this so cheap I'm selling it at 5c a cake! Here is a real opportunity to stock up on an extraordinary bargain.

Shorty Says

Doc's a good boy and I like him right well but he's got a mity poor memory. I can look back and remember the time I could get a yard of rubber licorice FOR A CENT! I could go in a drug store armed with a dime and come out with TWO sody waters! I can't do either TODAY! What's Doc done with all the big money he's making on licorice? I'll bet his licorice money alone amounts to millions of dollars! In these days a licorice stick is brittle and wears out sudden and costs a nickel! The old-fashioned rubber licorice NEVER wore out and cost a CENT! I'll bet there's hundreds of folks past forty who today are walking around healthy and happy with one of those rubber licorice ropes wound around their innards.

Nope, Doc's got a poor, very poor memory.

Milk of Magnesia

Most everyone knows the qualities of Milk of Magnesia. Couple these with the elements necessary for a good tooth paste and you have a combination that's mighty near perfect. We sincerely recommend this particular item.

Bobbed Hair Combs and Dandruff

We've got a whole shelf full of dandruff remedies and several of them are very good too. These bobbed hair combs (25c to 40c) used moderately are just about as good a dandruff remedy as any of them. In addition they keep your hair in place and make you easier to look at.

A "CURLING" ORATOR.

THIRTY-FIVE years ago Henry W. Grady of Georgia caught the country's ear by a number of speeches made before the New England Society of New York and its sister organization of Boston. His subject was "The New South"—a title which, he was careful to state, was employed by him in no disparagement of the Old. With skill suggesting the subtlety with which L. Q. C. Lamar had charmed the Nation fifteen years before by his moving speech on the passing of Charles Sumner of Massachusetts, Grady contrived to eulogize the Old South, as well as the New, in a way that pleased the North, and to praise the New North of tempered asperities, as well as the Old North of unrestrained fanaticism, in a way that did not displease his Georgia neighbors. When his body was taken home after making these speeches—he died soon after making the one at Boston—the whole country grieved; for the feeling was widespread and sincere that the Nation had lost an orator of singularly appealing quality, an editor whose work was constructively informing.

As a tribute to Grady's memory, the New England Society of New York, at its annual dinner following Grady's death, invited John Temple Graves of Georgia to make the speech of the evening. Mr. Graves accepted the invitation. The address by him, before the New Englanders resident in New York, who only a year or two before had applauded Grady's logic and fervor, was a disappointment. It lacked the solid substance and the charming form that had characterized Grady's oratory. Plentiful in sound, as well as in studiously balanced cadence of phrase, it set its hearers flocking ashes from their post-prandial cigars and eyeing somewhat curiously the ceiling.

The defect discerned by the New Englanders of New York in Mr. Graves' speech persistently marked his written and oral discourse. Flamboyant rather than fervid, virulent rather than virile, what he wrote, as well as what he spoke, lacked the hall-mark of scholarship and the force of cogent reasoning. His style of eloquence was wanting in the arresting quality that grips attention at the outset, and even more lacking in the quality that holds attention of public audiences when once it is obtained. At best, he was but a feeble reminder of the really eloquent Grady and orators of the South like W. C. P. Breckinridge of Kentucky, the scholarly Lamar and no less scholarly John Sharp Williams of Mississippi. One reason for this difference was that Williams, Lamar and Breckinridge were lifelong students, steeped in the best literature and intellectually disciplined by the long-practiced habit of serious reflection.

In his personal relations Mr. Graves was a gentleman not without many and various agreeable qualities. But neither as editor nor as public speaker has he sensibly impressed his generation. His type of writing and speaking is now happily passing. He was among the last of the class of "Curling" orators whose studied rhetorical cadences leave audiences wondering what the speaker is driving at and tempt the listener to look at the clock and inquire the way to the hat-and-coat room.

TRIAL

By the troubles you have met
By the griefs which you have borne,

By the heartache and regret,
And the bleeding from the thorn;
On the cruel forge of strife
You shall shape a lovelier life.

Souls are made by hammer blows
And the battering of fate,
He who only pleasure knows
Never can be truly great;
All our faith, and all our pride
Must be very often tried.

Youth has beauty of its own,
Smiles make lovely any face,
But the heart which has known
Has a richer touch of grace;
Out of trial, out of grief
Glow the splendor of belief.

On the anvil of the years
Must our characters be wrought,
By our heartaches and our tears
We are won to gentler thought;
Out of suffering we find
The true glory of mankind.

Not long ago I attended a shore supper in a party of 12. I am going to describe the affair in detail for the benefit of those among my readers who have never cooked a meal of this sort. The menu consisted of Clam Chowder, Pilot Bread, Boiled Lobster, Cantaloupe, Coffee and Marshmallows. (We used Quahog clams, but I shall refer to them merely as "Clams.")

At two o'clock in the afternoon a fire of dry seaweed and driftwood was started on a sandy beach perhaps 30 feet from the waves. This fire was banked on three sides with sand. Two kettles were suspended over its flames from a wire stretched taut between two posts driven into the sand on either side of the fire. These were the lobster kettles, six lobsters being cooked in them, in sea water—the smaller lobsters for one hour, the larger for one and one-half hours. When done, the lobsters were set aside to be eaten, cold, and the fire was allowed to die down to embers in which the marshmallows were toasted after supper.

A separate fire was used for the clam chowder and coffee. This was started at a short distance from the first and was banked on two sides with bricks, across the top of which was laid a sheet of iron to provide a stove-top. The recipes used on the occasion, follow:

Clam Chowder for Twelve: In a large pot try out one-half pound of diced salt pork, then add three large peeled and sliced raw onions and let fry till vegetable is a light brown. Now add 12 large, diced raw potatoes and two quarts of cold, fresh water and let simmer for about 30 minutes before adding one-half peck of round clams cut small. Cover the pot and let cook steadily for one hour, adding more water when evaporation reduces the original amount.

Then add one and one-half quarts of cold, sweet milk (a bottle of which has been buried deep in the sand to keep it from souring) and cook the mixture for perhaps five minutes before slipping into the pot two dozen water crackers which you have split and buttered generously. In three minutes the chowder will be ready to serve. Just before it is ready, the lobster meat is removed from the shell, placed on a platter and covered with oiled paper to protect it from blowing sand. At this time, too, the

Today's Talks

MANY, MANY THINGS
Someone, desiring to say something that would make people smile, remark that Theodore Roosevelt knew less about more subjects than any man in the world.

I smiled when I read that remark, but it made me think as well. In my own mind I came to the conclusion that Theodore Roosevelt knew more about more subjects than any man in the world. It was astounding the way he went into a subject, mastered it and made it his own forever. It was not alone his natural dynamo personality that made Roosevelt felt and admired, but also the way he made you feel that he knew things and loved knowing them.

The more things you know, the better prepared you are to appreciate each new thing which you discover or seek to analyze. Each day I find myself growing happier in my personal life. And this is not especially because I have me, but because with them I have a growing batch of interests to stimulate and extend my mind. I have broadened my reading and confined my association more and more to those who have something to give me be they rich or poor, learned or ignorant. For even in an ignorant person you often discover a streak of rich pay gravel or some buried gem.

During the past year I have formed the habit of reading something—usually from a different book—the last thing before I go to bed. I may be very tired from a long day, and I may arrive home late at night, but there must be a few minutes devoted to reading from some book. This is my "night cap."

But the great advantage will be that you will know more, have increased confidence in yourself and look upon all life, upon nature, and upon people as more akin to you than ever before.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE ANSWERED.

In 24 Hours Ends NEURITIS

When you've tried everything you can think of and nothing seems to even relieve those piercing, agonizing pains, just go to Sayre & Hemphill's or some other good druggist and get a bottle of Allenru Special Formula No. 2. Be sure you get No. 2 which comes in capsule form, for the liquid form is a special preparation for Rheumatism.

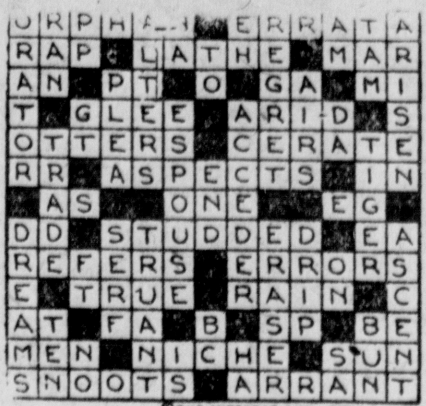

Take these little dark green capsules as directed and notice how in about 24 hours they have considerably reduced, if not entirely banished, those persistent, nerve racking pains that have caused you many sleepless nights. A few more doses and the pains have left you forever.

While this particular formula was compounded for the purpose of conquering painful, Gouty conditions and what is known as Rheumatoid Arthritis—a knotty, painful swelling of the joints—it has proven wonderfully successful in all forms of Neuritis and Sciatic Nerve Pains.

You needn't be afraid of its containing dose of any kind—it doesn't. Such things are only makeshifts and can only at the best give temporary relief.

Be sure you've got Neuritis and then get Allenru Special Formula No. 2. Your pains will be gone before you know it.

A SHOPPING GUIDE FOR THE BARGAIN HUNTER

"NOT POSSIBLE TO CLASSIFY" BY MACK SAUER

Xenia, Ohio, August 21.—A few jottings of the day by Samuel Pepys, Jr.: Out from a dream about Ed Davidson sending me a pet alligator from Florida, for which I had no use, and so up. Walked long alone by the river bank to see whether I could spy a few blackberries or no, and saw none. Had brave discourse with a stranger about our courts and modern justice.

To my tailor with my green suit, so slouchy it has become and Lord what a raking I gave him, calling him about the smell of gasoline the last time for which he made no excuses, and to my surprise said nothing about me not paying my bill, which is long past due. Saw Douglas, who has some flowers for sale and who advertises them on this page.

Talked with Omer Hagler about going to Florida and grieved that I cannot go because of my poor old flivver has a plenty to do to get home safely. Heaven knows! Much comment from all sides about the old-fashioned dancing and the opinion is that there will be plenty of it this winter.

In the late evening to my cellar to get a nip of elder which made me a bit foxy, and then to cleaning up the house, that is to putting radio wires and parts away and to carrying batteries here and there, my wife raising such a racket about having them strewn here, there and everywhere.

Late up and so to bed too tired for prayers.

FREIGHT WRECK ON SPRINGFIELD LINE CAUSED BIG DAMAGE

Ten cars on a north-bound Pennsylvania Railroad freight train on the Xenia and Springfield local run, left the rails and piled up at Oldtown Friday morning at 6 o'clock.
Members of the train crew escaped uninjured. Railroad officials were unable to estimate the damage done. Cause of the wreck is undetermined and will be investigated.
The train, composed of twenty cars, was traveling at a good rate of speed when one of the middle cars jumped the rails.
After traveling for another 200 feet, several of the middle cars buckled, then leaving the rails, while four toppled down an embankment into Oldtown Mill Run, adjacent to the track.
The track was torn up for a distance of 100 feet and one box car containing a load of lumber was reduced to kindling as it turned over in the creek bed.
The locomotive, tender and the first six freight cars held to the rails and were taken on to Springfield. The caboose and car attached were the only other cars to remain on the track. They were taken back to the local yards.
Officials estimated the line would be tied up for nearly twenty-four hours while the wreckage was being cleared away and new rails laid.
The train was in charge of George Shroaders, conductor, W. P. Fox, engineer, and W. C. Jones, fireman, all of Xenia.
Work of clearing away the wreckage was begun at once by a wrecking crew from Columbus and section gangs from the Xenia and Springfield yards.
The ten cars leaving the rails were loaded with scrap iron, coke, steel and lumber. Five were steel and five constructed of wood.
The creek bed was literally blocked with overturned cars. A heavy road roller carried in the leading flat car was also precipitated into the creek.

F. E. TILTON BUYS OUT PARTNERS IN TILTON CLOTHING FIRM HERE

Purchase of the half interest of Leo and Milton Katz in Tilton's Clothing store 33 East Main Street by F. E. Tilton, part owner of the store, was announced Friday. The deal was completed Thursday by which Mr. Tilton becomes sole owner of the establishment.
As a result of the transaction, Leo and Milton Katz sever association with a store with which they have been identified for the past ten years. The Katz brothers are proprietors of a chain of clothing stores. The store will continue to be known as Tilton's "33" and the policy will remain the same although an entire new line of stock will be displayed.
Mr. Tilton came to Xenia a year ago from Columbus and purchased the interest of Elmer Richards in the store then known as Katz and Richards. He was formerly associated with the Katz-Boyce store in Columbus.
The establishment was originally the firm of Katz and Maddux and the location has housed clothing stores many years.
The deal changing ownership of Mr. Tilton has been pending for two weeks and was completed Thursday morning over long distance telephone.

BOWERSVILLE WILL ENGAGE MELVIN IN SUNDAY PASTIMING

The Bowersville Bayliffs will go after their seventh straight victory in a game with Melvin Sunday afternoon at Bowersville.
Melvin has figured in fourteen games this season winning ten and losing four. The visitors hold victories over a number of high class teams. Melvin defeated the Washington C. H. Independent 1 to 0, and 5 to 4, Leesecreek 2 to 1, Milledgeville 7 to 4, and 9 to 7, the Springfield Tigers 10 to 8, Blanchester 4 to 2, and Wilmington Moose 9 to 1. Melvin, however, lost a second game to the Wilmington Moose team 5 to 4.
With such an enviable record this season, Melvin is counting upon breaking the long Bayliff winning streak.
Shadley will probably pitch for the Bayliffs Sunday. Shadley has pitched at Bowersville to victory in a majority of the contests won this season and is rated as one of the best twirlers in the county.

FAIRFIELD VALUES SHOW INCREASE IN APPRAISAL REPORT

Re-appraisal of all real estate in Fairfield was completed Wednesday and the new values mailed but after nearly four months of work, it is announced by officials of the County Auditor's office.

A radical change in the values was the result of the re-appraisal.

The new values are found to be much higher. Officials in accounting for this, point out Fairfield Village has during the intervening years two big air fields have located in the vicinity as well as two large cement plants.

R. O. Routzong, Fairfield real estate man, conducted the field work in connection with the re-appraisal. The appraisal was granted at the express request of the village council after County Commissioners had denied a county-wide appraisal in 1922.

Fairfield will not be included in the general county appraisal which must be made in 1926, it is said.

MICHAEL'S MARRIAGE

By MICHAEL

CHAPTER 128.

A sigh, denoting deep relief, escaped Lilah Menlow, and she sat down limply, feeling like an Atlas suddenly rid of the responsibility of holding up a world. The tea was over. The last guest was gone. She was alone with Michael.

"Well, that's over," she said. Her eyes wandered around the library with its decorations of evergreens and blooming flowers.

"You did splendidly," Michael exclaimed, blowing her a kiss. He, too, was weary.

"I hope so. Oh, I hope so! But I'm afraid—I saw some of those old cats off in the corner with their noses up, and my ears itched. But I don't care."

"You've given them something to talk about, all right; but in envy! Those little cakes were so clever!" He was proud of her. He had been a little apprehensive about this affair, her debut as a hostess among the matrons.

"Wasn't Sally a perfect darling?"

Thus they talked for half an hour, too exhausted to want to move. Then Lilah arose. "I'm going to bed. I'm going to sleep for two years."

Across the city, in one of the score of unimagined imitations of Italian villas that sit back on Grand avenue, two women talked. One of them was Bertha, whom Lilah Menlow looked upon as a friend. The other was Mrs. Rogers Thompson Shirleigh, who had "just dropped in for a moment" on her way home from the tea.

The latter spoke: "Absolutely pretentious for a new hostess," she commented. "She should have used better judgment."

Bertha's response was a nod. "And she's been rather long in giving it. They've been married an awfully long time. Hardly time for a 'house-warming.' She laughed.

Mrs. Shirleigh's diamonds flashed in the dim light. Mrs. Shirleigh, for some reason, had the entree to the best homes of the city. She considered herself an authority on all things social, and delighted particularly in making young and unskilled hostesses nervous and uncomfortable. She had been successful in putting Lilah on edge that afternoon.

"I suppose you know what the directors of the company are saying about her husband," Bertha's ears pricked up, and her eyes asked a question.

"Well, Mr. Shirleigh says John Stone says that Michael Menlow sold them out to Arthur Manning in the most treacherous, deceitful way. And after they had kept him an officer because of his father and mother."

"But you know he had a large interest in the company," Bertha put in.

"That's what made it worse! He was, after all, a sort of partner. Yet when he sells out, he does so privately to Arthur Manning! My husband says that Arthur Manning is manipulating the stocks of the company and that some of these days the local stockholders are going to find themselves out in the cold. Out in the cold, that's the expression he used. And all because of Michael Menlow. I don't suppose, though, he has the brains of his father or his mother had. Just weak. It's too bad."

Mrs. Shirleigh's thoughts took a turn.

"You know, she used awfully poor judgment in inviting that Helen Hunley. Surely she knows the stories going around about Helen Hunley."

"Yes, Bertha agreed. "I believe she does. I can't imagine why she invited Helen. They're not particular friends."

Mrs. Shirleigh her diamonds flashing gaudily, shrugged. "Well I'm afraid she is going to have a hard time establishing herself. I'm afraid her dinner will be somewhat of a failure. Too bad!"

She arose majestically. "Well, pet, I must be trotting along. Rogers will be wondering where I am. He's so impatient if I'm not home for dinner. These men! You must come in some afternoon and see my new poodle puppy. He's such a dear!"

Mrs. Shirleigh departed.
